- Tired of waiting two weeks or more for a deposition transcript?
- Want to instantly cure objections or immediately review a long and complicated answer from an expert witness?
- Lacking the time to learn software bells and whistles?

If so, here's your answer:

ViewerRT gives you the ability to receive an immediate text feed from a court reporter's computer via realtime technology. An inexpensive, uncomplicated program, ViewerRT lets you follow the testimony as it's being given and also scroll back to what was previously said. At the end of the proceedings, you'll have a rough draft of the transcript in an Amicus file that you can view in Notepad and other programs. You can also load the draft transcript into litigation support software programs – such as Summation iBlaze® - for review and digesting.
